LABOUR ✨ INSIGHT / JOBS

Labour Insight – Regional Scans: Attached to this issue of the bulletin are regional reports from Labour Insight covering the last 30 days (Dec. 19, 2019 - Jan. 17, 2020).

There is one report for each area covered in the bulletin.

The reports show, amongst other things the employers who have been hiring recently and the types of roles recruited for.

Some of the reports on the different counties have been split up to include different local authority areas to hopefully give a better picture of what is happening there. If you would like me to include more focused reports (such as on a particular district or TWA area), please get in touch!

These are the UK's best paid jobs in 2020, says Indeed: Chief financial officers perform the U.K.'s best paid job on average, according to global jobs site Indeed.

CFOs are responsible for managing a company's financial planning and reporting. In Britain they take home an average salary of £112,666, when calculating from ads placed on Indeed's website.

Indeed analyzed more than 3,200 full-time job advertisements posted on its website, to calculate which roles had the highest average annual pay.

Other senior financial roles also made it into Indeed's top 20 ranking, albeit much further down on the list, with vice presidents of finance commanding a salary of £86,517 and tax directors earning £85,742 annually.

Vice president of sales came in second place on the list, with an average salary of £109,278, followed by the vice president of engineering, taking home £108,623 a year.

Medical specialist roles rounded out the top five earners. Orthodontists, which fix the appearance of teeth usually with braces, earn £99,010 and dermatologists, or skincare specialists, get paid £93,282 a year on average.

Neonatologists, who take care of newborn babies, rheumatologists, who treat diseases in the joints and ophthalmologists, who deal with eye disorders, were also among the medical specialisms dominating the top 10.

In fact, medical specialists accounted for nearly half of the top 20 best-paid roles.

The UK's best paid jobs in 2020

Sector Trends

Indeed data shows care role dominating fastest growing jobs in past year: Staff shortages in health and social care have led the sector to dominate a ranking of the top 10 fastest growing jobs in 2019, according to new data released by the world's largest job site, Indeed.

The company analysed thousands of jobs advertised across its platform to pinpoint which have seen the biggest rise in vacancies in 2019 compared to 2018.

The role recording the biggest surge in demand was 'travelling nurse' – experienced nurses who cover for staff nurses across a whole region – with vacancies jumping by 169 per cent on their 2018 levels.

In total, seven of 2019's top 10 fastest growing roles are in the health and social care sector, including jobs in childcare and in mental health provision.

Nursing jobs made up three of the top 10, with posts for home care nurses rising by 142 per cent and psychiatric nurses by 89 per cent.

The rise in job openings for nurses may be attributed to staff shortages. A 2018 study by the Kings Fund and the University of York found four in 10 home care workers leave their role each year while the Royal College of Nursing says the NHS has lost 5,000 mental health nurses since 2010.

UK employers will offer fewer entry-level jobs in 2020, figures suggest: Young workers will be forced to compete for fewer positions this year, as data suggests that the entry-level jobs market is set to stagnate.

The Institute of Student Employers' (ISE) Pulse Survey for 2020 showed that employers were planning to recruit just 2.7% more new school-leavers and graduates this year.

However, even this figure could prove optimistic after its research found that student recruiters are failing to hit their targets, pointing to a potential stagnation across the jobs market.

A slowdown in graduate recruitment accounts for the bulk of the decline, though the survey also pointed to a slowdown in hiring of school leavers and apprentices in the months ahead.

Many of the jobs created in the UK over the past decade are too senior for students fresh out of school or university or are low-skilled, requiring little to no training.

New grant announced for nursing, midwifery and many AHP students: Nursing, midwifery and many allied health professional students are to receive a £5000 a year grant from August 2020.

The grant has been announced in time for students to apply for courses through UCAS before the deadline of 15 January 2020.

All nursing, midwife and many allied health professional degree students studying or starting their course in August 2020 will receive at least £5,000 a year. There will also be up to £3,000 further funding available for:

- specialist disciplines that struggle to recruit, including mental health
- an additional childcare allowance to help them balance their studies with family life, on top of the £1,000 already on offer
- areas of the country which have seen a decrease in people accepted onto some nursing, midwifery and allied health courses over the past year

This means that some students could be eligible for up to £8,000 in total support per year with everyone getting at least £5,000. The funding will not have to be repaid.

Reports

Leicester named as best city for hiring in 2020: The latest report from CV-Library, the independent job board, reveals that job applications have increased by 6.3% in the last year. What's more, for many of the nation's major cities, it's the second year in a row that job applications have grown.

The report from CV-Library analysed job market data throughout 2019 and compared it with statistics from 2018. The findings show that key cities witnessed an even bigger jump in applications last year, "making them the best locations for hiring in 2020":

- Leicester – job applications up by 14.7%

- Bristol – job applications up by 13%
- Aberdeen – job applications up by 12.9%
- London – job applications up by 11.2%
- Brighton – job applications up by 10%
- Portsmouth – job applications up by 9.1%
- Southampton – job applications up by 8.7%
- Edinburgh – job applications up by 8.5%
- Nottingham – job applications up by 8.4%
- Manchester – job applications up by 5.4%

A key driving factor behind the jump in applications may well be the fact that average pay jumped up by 3.7% in 2019.

Derby - Development

1,250 jobs on the way as £80m logistics park gets the green light:

Plans to create an £80 million, 650,000 sq ft industrial and logistics scheme in Derby have been given the green light by City Council chiefs.

St. Modwen has secured a resolution to grant outline planning permission for a 70-acre site on Wyvern Way, adjacent to Pride Park, after submitting a revised proposal in conjunction with landowners Network Rail.

The huge scheme could bring up to 1,250 jobs to the city.

Work will begin on St. Modwen Park Derby this year, with the developer preparing to submit plans for its first phase shortly.

The initial units are expected to be ready for occupation in early 2021.

65 jobs on the way as Rutland bows to burger business: The East Midlands county of Rutland, which has long prided itself on being the only county in the country without a McDonald's, has finally succumbed to the US fast food chain.

Yesterday evening, Rutland County Council chiefs approved plans to build a McDonald's drive-thru restaurant at Lands End Way on the edge of Oakham.

The new restaurant will bring 65 jobs to the area.

Notts 'college' funding terminated: A multi-site "college" is to have its funding contracts terminated, after serious safeguarding failures were exposed in a damning Ofsted report.

City College Nottingham, a private training provider with eight campuses across the Midlands, laid off staff and stopped taking on new enrolments ahead of the publication of a grade four inspection report on December 20th.

A Department for Education spokesperson this week told this newspaper that "termination letters were issued to City College Nottingham on 24th December. We are meeting with the provider later this week to go through the next steps of our contract termination process, in line with our published intervention guidance".

The spokesperson would not reveal the contract termination date, but the Education and Skills Funding Agency typically gives providers three months to wrap up.

At the time of the inspection, 191 learners were on adult learning programmes and there were 110 apprentices.
